CAUTION.

Watch against impostors, and be sure you get the real article, and not that they are made by braiding two strips of cloth together, and then stitching a pin through them, thus proving that they are but a double spring in each loop.

Yours respectfully,

A. H. WARD.

This epistle should be printed in letters of gold on sheets of silver, and spread broadcast over the State.

The letter to the Mayor and City Council of Rome, Georgia, published by command of General Thomas, calls for some remarks, which if we had seen the letter before its publication, we should make in the Journal of yesterday.

The letter is open to the same objections as the reply of General Sheridan to the Mayor of Galveston. It asserts unlawful authority in a coarse manner, and consequently, is doubly injurious to the public cause. For this reason we protest against it.

We will add to this conclusive authority the testimony of a son of Massachusetts who represents worthily the fourth generation of a family of statesmen. "The demand of Congress for additional guarantees," said John Quincy Adams in a masterly speech at Taunton last Fall, "is more radical than what sometimes think. It is not to do with the master; but, if they had done nothing, the master would have passed away with a much better effect than is likely to follow their illegal inference. Expediency as well as principle should have restrained them from any interference."

In view of the fact that Congress by a usurpation of inexpessable emunity is about to put the whole South under martial law, we should hardly deem it worthy to judge this letter by the strict standard of law, if the letter did not assert the right to exercise some power in Kentucky that has just been exercised in Georgia. The assertion tends to rescue the letter from practical quipa-tory, as it is utterly inconsistent with the supremacy of civil authority. If a military commander, without regard to the laws, can arrest and punish citizens of Kentucky, the Commonwealth is already on hand a well-selected stock of the purest breed CHESTER

ON THE RIVER. Having paid particular at-ention to the horses of the purest blood, we have selected a stock of horses of the purest blood, and the best horses in the world.
